When an individual is found to be a member of the Communist Party, it is necessary to take certain steps to protect the public interest. The first step is to inform the appropriate authorities of the individual's name and address. The second step is to provide any information that may be available regarding the individual's activities. The third step is to take appropriate action to prevent the individual from engaging in any further activities that may be harmful to the public interest.

It is the policy of the government to maintain the highest standards of integrity and honesty in the public service. Any individual who is found to be a member of the Communist Party is considered to be a threat to the national security. It is the duty of all citizens to report any such individuals to the appropriate authorities. The government will take all necessary steps to protect the public interest and to ensure the highest standards of integrity and honesty in the public service.

The government is committed to the principle of equal treatment for all citizens. It is the policy of the government to provide equal opportunities for all citizens, regardless of their race, religion, or ethnicity.
